New Sheriff in Town Sniff Takes Over Vacated Sheriff's Position

The Black Voice News

RIVERSIDE

Riverside County Sheriff Stanley Sniff

This week, the Riverside County Board of Supervisors installed as the newest sheriff Stanley Sniff. Sniff succeeds Sheriff Bob Doyle who announced his retirement last month.

Sniff, 58, retired in December as an Assistant Sheriff after beginning a career with the sheriff's department in 1979.

The vote was 3-2 when it came down to Sniff's appointment. Supervisors Marion Ashley, Jeff Stone and John Tavaglione voted to appoint Sniff. Supervisors Bob Buster and Roy Wilson voted against the motion, with Wilson stating that while another candidate was his top choice, he did not oppose Sniff's selection.

Sniff is a career law enforcement officer who has worked to ensure public safety for nearly three decades. He started his career as a police officer with the city of Coachella in 1975 and transferred to the Riverside County Sheriff's Department in 1979.

As a sergeant assigned in the Coachella Valley, Sniff created and

CALIFORNIA

Barack Obama

The California Legislature's Black Caucus has endorsed Democrat Barack Obama for president.

The eight lawmakers who make up the caucus say the Illinois senator is in their words the only candidate that can unite people to get things done.

The caucus' vice chair, Assemblywoman Karen Bass of Los Angeles, says the country needs a president who is committed to addressing the disparity gaps that exist in our communities.

Bass says Obama is that person.

Besides Bass, caucus members include Assembly members Wilmer Carter of Rialto, Mike Davis of Los Angeles, Mervyn Dymally of Compton, Curren Price of Inglewood, Sandre Swanson of Alameda and state Senators Mark Ridley-Thomas of Los Angeles and Edward Vincent of Inglewood.

State-of-the-art Facility Showcases City's Commitment to Youth

New Phoenix Center Takes Flight

The Black Voice News

SAN BERNARDINO

By Chris Levister

Never mind the high voltage bickering over how best to address San Bernardino's notorious crime problem, 8-year-old Dasher Johnson and 9-year-old Steven Garcia are getting their wish: a safe place to go after school.

Operation Phoenix, the city-run youth facility operating since mid 2006 has moved from its Waterman Avenue headquarters to First Church of the Nazarene, about a half mile away.

"It's cool," says Dasher a regular at the Waterman center, navigating a computer game, cool he says as in Operation Phoenix's new digs located at 1605 N. Sierra Way.

For (Chief) Mike Miller, the shiny new community center is a proud symbol of the city's commitment to the kids and parents of one of the city most troubled communities.

"We opened the doors unofficially Monday at 11:00 a.m. We're seeing many of the kids from the old center. The bonus is we're seeing new kids like Steven."

Staffers and volunteers are out in the community with flyers going door to door talking with kids and their families urging them to come over, says Miller, the center's energetic and affable manager.

"We want families to know this is a safe place where kids can come to learn, play, do their homework, meet new friends and not have to worry about looking over their shoulder."

Miller, also a police volunteer, admits some families have stayed away believing the center caters to mainly troubled youth.

"I encourage everybody to come. We've had kids that are in gangs and kids, on probation, kids performing community service. We also have kids who have never been in trouble who just want a nice safe place to hang out," says Miller.

"The rules are, leave the gang mentality at the door, no gang colors, gang dress, bad language or rough play. Come here and have a good time. The door is open to everyone. If we can help troubled kids turn their lives around - that's a beautiful thing," said Miller.

Miller recalls one of the center's successes. "Young Michael now 14, he came in was on probation for carrying a weapon and firing it. He had no male role model at home. He wasn't ashamed of what he did but he understood it was wrong. Essentially he was crying out for help. He interviewed the mayor for the Operation Phoenix Kids newspaper. We all encouraged him and made him feel loved. He has turned his life around. If this center had not reached out to help Michael, his fate would be very different.

Miller says many of the kids have his e-mail address and personal cell-phone number.

"A young girl ran away from home recently. Late at night she had the courage to pick up the phone and call me for help. I contacted her parents. She is now back at home. It's a good feeling to know kids feel safe here. For even the best of kids life can be rough and unkind. We want to be a beacon for them.

That's our mission says Pastor David Rohn of First Church of the Nazarene.

"This partnership was done for the community, for the children, if we don't change the negative perception kids have before age 10, we lose them. Reaching out early and often is the key," said Rohn.

Everyone seems to agree, the center is good for the community. Randy Jacobs and Ricardo Darby were at the helm of constructing the original Waterman center.

"To be involved in transforming the new center and the church's auditorium into a state of the art gym is a chance to give back to our youth," says Jacobs of Koston Construction.

Darby called the anti-crime, anti blight initiative created by Mayor Pat Morris a model of public, private and faith-based partnership.

"For me this is more than a job. It's truly an act of love and commitment."

Changing Face of Business Reflected at Inland Women's Conference

The Black Voice News

RANCHO CUCAMONGA

By Chris Levister

The Inland Empire is an economic showstopper and women are walking the red carpet.

At the 9th annual Inland Empire Women's Conference hundreds of women from across the region treated themselves to a day of empowerment and rejuvenation at the retreat-like setting of Etiwanda Gardens in Rancho Cucamonga.

The buzz was not about the designer label on their dress rather their exploding influence in the health care, financial, professional and business services, trade, transportation, construction, and manufacturing.

"This conference reflects the changing face of women in business in the Inland Empire. The region is bursting with qualified women's business enterprises," says conference organizer, Jan Stephens, board chair of the Fontana Chamber of Commerce.

"We've attended this conference since 2000, if you look around at the informative workshops inspirational speakers, business tools, precious contacts and dozens of exhibitors eager to do business, it's just amazing," said Janice Weeks, whose Ontario company manufactures computer parts.

"We're mothers and highly skilled working professionals, bringing home the bacon and cooking it," said keynote panelist Carole N. Sanders, Senior Resident Engineer, Lim and Nascimento Engineering Corporation. As chief resident engineer Sanders made headlines recently when she brought in the 210 freeway expansion project safely, on time and under budget.

"Years ago you were a secretary or a housewife, now women are commanding respect in the once male dominated business and industry sectors pursuing jobs, forming and running their own businesses. It's a cycle, during the 60's women burned their bras, today they're manufacturing them."

This year's event "Today's Strength, Tomorrow's Legacy" drew more than 400

Bush S-Chip Veto Leaves 120,000 Inland Kids Behind In Health

The Black Voice News

SAN BERNARDINO

By Chris Levister

September 30 is in the history books. That's the day President Bush promised to veto a massive health insurance bill that provides health-care coverage to an estimated 120,000 Inland children of low income parents.

With the expiration date passed parents who earn too much money to qualify for Medi-Cal and too little to afford insurance could be forced to pay their children's health care expenses.

The national program called S-CHIP is administered in partnership with the states.

The Children's Health Insurance Program, known as Healthy Families in California, covers families earning up to two times the federal poverty level, about $41,000 for a family of four.

Congress proposes to raise the eligibility level to three times the federal poverty level, or about $60,000 for a family of four. It would add $35 billion dollars over four years to enroll 4 million more children.

President Bush says "no" calling the measure a step toward "federalization" of health care. The president says he supports the program, passed 10 years ago by a Republican-controlled Congress. But he claims Democrats are trying to expand coverage to middle-income children whose families can afford private insurance.

Last week, the House passed the bill by a vote of 265-159. Despite a solid majority, members fell 25 votes short of the 290 needed to override Bush's expected veto.

President Bush's threatened veto of a bill that would renew and expand health care insurance for children, could leave 120,000 inland children without coverage.

Obama and Hillary

I have heard from so many of you who are frustrated, conflicted, and torn over the Hillary and Obama campaigns for President. On the one hand, you want Obama to be nominated while being forceful on issues crucial to the Black community knowing he can't win with that strategy alone. You say that Hillary is coasting, relying on former President Bill Clinton's positive relationship with the Black community. You suspect that the country would rather have its first white female president before its first Black male one. You are also asking why so many Black elected leaders and others like Quincy Jones, Berry Gordy, Clarence Avant, Magic Johnson, William Gray

Hardy L. BROWN

III, Willie Gary, Ron Dellums, most members of the Congressional Black Caucus, and other notable Blacks are endorsing her candidacy. You are asking why they would just up and endorse her without her spelling out a specific plan for Black America in her administration agenda. Well the California Legislative Black Caucus has broken ranks with the national trend and have endorsed Barack Obama and of course Oprah is supporting Obama. Even though the elected and self appointed leaders within the Black community are touting Hillary, the rank and file Blacks are pulling for Obama. They have expressed that even though it is a long shot, he is the best shot in the race.

When you look at the latest financial reporting Obama is demonstrating that he is a serious contender and his race is not an issue with the majority of Americans. Obama raised at least $19 million from over 93,000 donors during this past quarter alone. His supporters are saying that he is the only one to bring about a real change. On the other hand Hillary raised $27 million from over 100,000 donors during this same period. That within itself should be a wake up call to Blacks at the local level who said they can't seek office because of the color of their skin. Yes, to some your color does matter, but to most it is what you represent and stand for that matters. It is what you bring to the table and how you plan to serve that matters. It is your ideas, character, and dedication to uplift our standard of living by being tolerant and inclusive of others that matters. This is why Obama is standing tall in the eyes of the public. It is also the same reason Hillary is standing tall, and with her husband Bill Clinton, she is standing taller in the Black community.

Yes it appears to me that Hillary has the support of Black leaders while Obama has the Black community at large. Of course the election is still a long way off so there is still plenty of time for you to get involved to help the candidate of your choice.

Willie Mae Jacquet Will Be Missed

Willie Mae Jacquet, one of the great mothers of the famous 20th Street families passed away last week. I first laid eyes on Ms. Jacquet in 1961 when I was introduced to her by Joseph (Joe) Jacquet, Jr. She greeted me with her warm affectionate smile and treated me like family. Most of the time I saw her, she had an apron to cover her dress and you know she would not be far from the kitchen. She took great care of the family even when her husband Joseph was working out of town. When he was hurt on the job and became the political guru of the Sixth Ward, Mrs. Jacquet was always by his side to host a coffee for the candidates of his choosing and entertain the guests. She was the mother to her own children as well as the Walkers, Hobbs, Macons, Parkers, Minters, Garrets, Smiths, Dixons, Holders, Hammonds, Nettles, Lewis and later she played grandmother to mine.

I always loved talking to Mrs. Jacquet because she reminded me so much of my mother. She always spoke highly of others. She never turned away a child in need. She always had a smile on her face and now she smiles down on all of us. To the family, you have truly been blessed to have had a mother like her.

Happy Birthday Mr. Macon

Also on 20th Street this past week the Macon's celebrated the 90th birthday of Stanley Macon. To all who know him, this is the proud father of Elvern, Edna, Ella and Stanley Jr. Mr. Macon's front lawn was one of the "layout on the lawns and watch people go by" places on the Westside. Happy Birthday Mr. Macon and enjoy many more.

Now I am sure some of you are wondering why I would single out this family and this lawn. Well the reason this lawn is so significant to me is because I was standing at that spot when Joe Jacquet Jr. introduced me to my wife, Cheryl.

A CALL TO ACTION TO DISMANTLE THE CRADLE TO PRISON PIPELINE

The Founding Fathers drafted the Constitution as a roadmap to, as the Preamble says, "establish justice," "promote the general welfare" and "secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity." Somehow over the last 220 years, our nation lost its way and developed a system that has established America as the prison capital of the world.

There are more than two million people incarcerated in America, including 837,000 African American men our fathers, brothers, children and grandchildren. A growing number of our sisters and mothers are also behind bars.

On September 25 and 26, the Children's Defense Fund convened a national Summit on America's Cradle to Prison Pipeline. Crisis at Howard University to focus on the looming national catastrophe for all Americans but especially for the African American and Latino communities. A Black boy who is 6 years old today has a 1 in 3 chance of going to prison in his lifetime; a Black 6-year-old girl has a 1 in 17 chance. A Latino 6-year-old boy has a 1 in 6 chance and a Latina girl has a 1 in 45 chance. Tens of thousands of children and teens are being sucked into the Pipeline each year as they struggle to grow up at the dangerous intersection of poverty and race.

It's time to name and change the Cradle to Prison Pipeline and stop

the feeder systems that are sentencing our children to social and economic death and eroding the gains of the Civil Rights Movement built on such great toil and sacrifice.

At the Howard Summit, CDF released a report on America's Cradle to Prison Pipeline Crisis that everyone should read, share, and discuss in your homes, congregations, communities and organizations. Decide how you are going to be a part of the solution rather than the problem. It's time for all adults to hear and respond to the cries of our children for help.

It is time for the adults of every race and income group to break our silence about the pervasive breakdown of moral, family, community and national values, to place our children first in our lives, and to struggle to model the behavior we want our children to learn. We do not have a 'child and youth problem,' we have a profound adult problem.

CDF's report documents the convergence and accumulation of multiple social and economic risks and a national ethos that too frequently chooses incarceration over healthy child and youth development. The Cradle to Prison Pipeline crisis can be reduced to the simple facts that: the United States of America does not provide a level playing field for all children and our nation does not value and protect all children's lives equally.

Jena, Louisiana, is just the latest glaring example of how poverty and race converge to pull poor males of color into the Cradle to Prison Pipeline. A Black youth is 48 times more likely than a White youth to be incarcerated for the same or similar drug offense. CDF's report describes the conditions that force many poor infants in rich America into the Prison Pipeline from birth because they enter the world with multiple strikes against them. These are the children of poor single mothers without prenatal care, children who have no access to health and mental health care; whose family and community supports are inadequate to prevent abuse and neglect. They have poor or no early childhood education opportunities to prepare them for school, and they attend schools that expect and teach little and that exclude and criminalize them at younger and younger ages. These are the children with too few positive role models and no alternatives to the streets.

Over the next weeks, this column will discuss the various factors and systems that are feeding children into the Pipeline including dysfunctional families and failing schools that are not preparing our children to read and compete and that are criminalizing our young children of color. We will also look at the child welfare and juvenile justice systems. But the biggest problem is you and me and the lack of focused attention and outreach and the lack of a visible, organized voice from parents, the faith community and political leaders to protect children.

This Pipeline is not an act of God it's the result of human choices, actions and inaction, a result that we can and must change now and together. The report is available on CDF's website at: www.childrensdefense.org/cradletoprisson.

Marian Wright Edelman is President of the Children's Defense Fund and its Action Council whose Leave No Child Behind mission is to ensure every child a Healthy Start, a Head Start, a Fair Start, a Safe Start and a Moral Start in life and successful passage to adulthood with the help of caring families and com-

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

By Julie Johnson

New America Media

"Fighting global warming begins at home" - a catchphrase for Flex Your Power's energy conservation awareness campaign in ethnic media - has a double meaning for ethnic Californians: Home is not only California, but the home countries they left behind.

South and Central Asia, along with sub-Saharan Africa, are already feeling the brunt of weather changes blamed on global warming - erratic storm patterns, droughts, increasing desertification of once fertile lands. At the same time these regions bear the least responsibility for producing greenhouse gases that cause climate change.

A survey of California's ethnic media leaders reveals that many see themselves as "town criers" in alerting homeland populations as well as audiences here to the urgency of curbing climate change now.

"We who live in the wealthiest regions of the world like California have a special obligation to start raising awareness on how to conserve energy and reduce our carbon footprints - especially as even governments back home are gearing up to sound the warning," says Amardeep Gupta, publisher of the South Asian magazine Siliceneer.

Because the Los Angeles area magazine Indonesia Media reaches an international audience, Chief Editor Dr. Ibrahim Irawan says he covers stories not found in the Indonesian press. He knows that day-to-day survival trumps environmental concerns for people living in Indonesia. But Indonesia has close to 10 percent of the world's rainforests - a major source of the Earth's oxygen - and they are fast disappearing due to illegal logging and farming. For poor farmers, the cheapest way to create farmland is to burn the rainforests. Irawan believes that Indonesians in the United States must take the lead in promoting better environmental practices and create incentives for the Indonesian government to develop alternative job programs.

The United States 'uses a large portion of the world's energy, "far in excess of our population," says Federico Galindo, general manager for Azteca America's Fresno station. Communities here must take the lead in using energy more efficiently, he says, and then "we can get the rest of the developing world to follow."

Changing light bulbs from incandescent to compact fluorescent and driving less are small ways, he says, that people can make an impact. "We can't all go out and build a solar panel or develop electric cars, but we can all find little things that will help."

Azteca America, Galindo's network, regularly covers global warming and environmental issues, and that work extends beyond the newsroom. Fundación Azteca America gives grant money to environmental preservation programs alongside those fighting drug addiction. It led campaigns to save gray whale habitats along the Mexican Baja coast and preserve a monarch butterfly sanctuary in Michoacán.

International scientists anxiously watch a massive swath of Siberia's permafrost - about the size of France and Germany combined - that has begun to melt for the first time since the last ice age. Unchecked, this melting could release billions of tons of methane, a potent greenhouse gas, and among those attributed to climate change.

Irene Parker, editor in chief of Panorama newspaper, a Russian-language weekly based in Los Angeles, emphasizes that her paper isn't out to tell her readers what's right or wrong. Parker has found that Russians in the United States are far more engaged in environmental issues than are those back in Russia. In fact, her readers include scientists on the front lines of the debate over whether climate change is human-driven or part of a natural cycle, and Panorama's pages reflect that debate.

Though she isn't quite convinced about the direness of global warming, Parker believes efficiency and conservation measures make sense. Her family switched to fluorescent light bulbs at home and her husband, a landlord, installed low-flow toilets in their properties to save water and money. She adds, "If something is good and makes sense, we change."

China may have already passed the United States as the world's largest contributor of greenhouse gases, based on figures recently released by the Netherlands Environmental Assessment Agency. Joseph Leung, editor in chief of Sing Tao Daily's San Francisco edition, says Chinese media in the United States closely follow environmental stories from China. He says Chinese media here also play a key role in translating important environment news from U.S. government agencies or mainstream media.

Native and African-American media, who have long covered environmental justice stories, are also boosting their coverage of global warming.

Nothing made it as clear that ethnic and low-income communities are the hardest hit by environmental disasters than Hurricane Katrina, says Mary Ratcliff, editor of the San Francisco Bay View, an African-American newspaper.

"Poor communities of color are where environmental hazards get dumped," Ratcliff says. "That doesn't just mean refuse, it includes power-generating plants and polluting industries and environmentally vulnerable neighborhoods."

Because many native communities are in rural areas - regions more sensitive to environmental change - they're among the first affected by environmental degradation, says Sundust Martinez, co-anchor of Native Voice TV and co-founder of the Indigenous Peoples Council. That's what drives tribal media's consistent coverage of the environment, he says, adding that people who live "out in the desert or tundra, and one day is hot and one day is cold, they know something's wrong."

That approach is reflected in native media stories. They tend to "look at the root of the problem," Martinez says, adding that "as far as global warming, there's a big root that we need to pull out."

FIBROMYALIA

Dear Dr. Levister: I recently saw a rheumatologist who said my worsening muscle aches are caused by a 'syndrome' called fibromyalgia. My regular doctor says it's all in my head. Where can I get the truth? P.B.

Dear P.B. Most people have never heard of the term "fibromyalgia" and unfortunately some physicians are either not familiar with the disorder or chose not to recognize it.

If you have suffered unexplained chronic muscle aches that are typical of the disorder you have probably gone from doctor to doctor looking for answers. Fibromyalgia is one of the most common disorders seen by rheumatologists, and yet it is probably one of the least familiar and understood conditions. Victims of this disorder, mostly women are usually given a diagnosis of arthritis or just 'pains of aging'.

Fibromyalgia typically causes sore shoulders, hips, neck and back muscles, persistent fatigue and tenderness in the elbows and knees. Also called fibrosistis, symptoms often include insomnia, irritable bowel syndrome and migraine headaches. Some sufferers complain of 'feeling blue' and frustrated.

Not so long ago, fibromyalgia was considered to be a psychosomatic illness, which was particularly frustrating and demeaning to its victims, many of whom are well educated professional women. Over the years women's health advocates have pressured doctors to provide more accurate answers to this condition.

While the specific causes of this disorder are unknown, EEG tests showed that victims of fibromyalgia had a specific type of disruption in their brain wave patterns while they sleep. The results remain inconclusive. Other possible causes include, major stress, trauma, nutritional deficiencies and in rare cases thyroid disease.

Some patients say the prescription drug Cymbalta seems to "take the edge off" symptoms. The drug is not recommended for pain however. Other suffers suggest taking magnesium, calcium, vitamin E and flex seed supplements.

Drink plenty of fluids, especially freshly-squeezed vegetable and fruit juices.

A prominent slavery approach involved in the control and domination of African American slave was the use of highly trained so-called "negro dogs"—bloodhounds, foxhounds, bulldogs, Scotch staghounds, or curs (a mongrel)-to track runaway slaves. The professional slave catchers provided their own "Negro dogs" and often allowed the dogs to give a fugitive a severe mauling. This was a common practice in all slave states-defended and justified in the courts. White Patterollers and their dogs--in the spirit of "killing an animal" for sport (like fox hunting)--rode through swamps in search of fugitives. When the slave was caught, he was whipped on the spot; and taken back to the plantation where the slave owner punished him again. In one story, Uncle Isom, a very strong runaway, caught the leading hound and then beat the rest of the dogs. However, upon being overpowered by the White men, the dogs were allowed to bite off the victim's body parts. When returned to the plantation, Uncle Isom was given 300 lashes (Botkin, Lay My Burden Down p180, 159).

Slave Owners' "Negro Dogs"

The generic training of "Negro attack dogs" went like this. The dogs were locked up and "never allowed to see a negro except while training to catch him." Dogs were given the scent of a Black person's shoe or article of clothing and taught to follow the scent. Slaves were sent out as trainees. When the dogs treed the slave, the dogs were given meat as a reward. "Afterwards they learn to follow any particular negro by scent." Besides the Patterollers' readiness "with the zest of sport," their canine "Negro hunters" were fierce, vicious, and fearsome beasts. If the dogs were not constrained at the end of the chase, they would tear a man to pieces (Franklin, Runaway Slaves, p160). Once discovered, the slave was bound, beaten, and bloodied (Brady, The Black Badge p17). Although the "night watchers" were replaced following slavery, their essence and practices were continued by the Ku Klux Klan (who existed in slavery but under different names). As evil and sadistic as Europeans were to the slaves and their descendants, the question arises as to what reverberations did the police "Negro attack dogs" have, not only on the slaves but also on their descendants, up to this day? Black Americans know that the big picture was larger than just fearful slaves.

Following slavery, attack dogs contributed to maintaining apathy, frustration, and chronic anger generated in Black people by ongoing racism. Since hostile emotions were escalating in Negroes after World War II, only Rev. M.L. King Jr. could have led the Montgomery Bus Boycott for an entire year without violent retaliation against the attack dogs, fire hoses, and other barbarism instigated by extremely sadistic White people. No doubt, attack dogs produced psychic trauma in many minds of the slaves and subsequent Blacks, either from direct experience or from vicarious empathy. Chances are that this trauma designed, in a few Black people, mental transformations from peaceful people into a hateful mindset-a mindset that was culturally transmitted. Could that transmission display today as hateful re-enactments (e.g. on dogs used as symbols)? Otherwise, an entire scenario regarding attack dogs on Blacks has set up a special "dog" atmosphere. From my boyhood days onward, I have seen many Black people terribly afraid of the most gentle of dogs. But with irritable dogs, that fear often causes those dogs to go on the attack. I have treated some of those Black people for vicious dog bites and seen how they are adversely affected!

Another Lesson a Father Might Teach His Son in the Jena 6 Case

of life left ahead of him. And the day he sets foot out of jail, I'm going to tell him, I'm going to tell him again. You know what it is to be Black now. Here it is."

I understand the frustration of the father. However that kind of message going into the mind of an impressionable Black youth will possibly obstruct his vision of the enormous opportunities available for all Americans, including Blacks.

The Jena 6 case involves six Black high school male students in Jena, LA on trial for the brutal attack upon a lone white male student named Justin Barker. The District Attorney J. Reed Walters filed charges that could potentially lead to life in prison for the defendants, which caused the parents of the Black youths to come out fighting.

Robert Bailey, and the other defendants are athletes; five on them were on the Jena High School football team. Mychal Bell, who had received football scholarship offers, was the first to be put on trial. He was originally charged as an adult but later recharged as a juvenile and released on bail, to an awaiting crowd of supporters and cheers of victory.

On September 28, 2007on The Dr. Phil Show, Rev. Al Sharpton said what was done to Barker was wrong but two wrongs does not make a civil rights. Dr. Phil in another segment said to Bishop T. D. Jakes, "If I was a parent of one of the Jena 6, I would ask, what are you doing getting in a fight and jumping on somebody with five of your friends."

Bishop Jakes replied, "On both sides, the parents need to police the behavior of their children better than they do."

A similar case occurred last Halloween in Long Beach, CA where ten juvenile Blacks, mostly girls, were arrested and ultimately convicted of brutally beating three white girls. The Black parents accused the criminal justice system of racism, which contributed to the defiance and lack of remorse of their children who ranged in age from 12 to 17-years-old. Do these type of lessons to guilty youths really help?

Another lesson Marcus Jones might tell his son, Mychal, now a folk hero. To be Black means that you must strive more diligently to avoid getting involved with criminal behavior. Don't let your emotions dictate your actions. Marcus Jones might attempt to explain to Mychal why there are only a few community activists and preachers speaking out for the Jena 6 but no nationally known political figures Black or white.

There is no affirmative action program for crime whereas Blacks are entitled to one free felony or gang attack before they face prison. A Black boy with a criminal record should be told that a college degree is an absolute must, football scholarship or not.

Manage Your Business With Google Apps

a folder.

I suggest that every time you receive an e-mail that is not important for you to see during your daily work flow, apply a filter. For example, I receive many newsletters that I enjoy reading, but cause a distraction to my daily work flow. So I apply a label that I name the same as the name (say that fast 5 times) of the newsletter, and automatically archive it, so I don't see it until I choose to. Later, when I have reading-time, I will look at my labels along the left. Items I have not read will be in bold, making it easy to see what's new.

DOCUMENTS

Think of this feature as a basic version of Microsoft Word that allows you to instantly collaborate with your team members. You can edit a document simultaneously and speak to the collaborators via an attached chat window over the Internet. You can also apply labels to documents and use Google's built in search to find what you need.

SPREADSHEETS

The spreadsheets are similar to Microsoft Excel, but a stripped down version. It works collaboratively like the Google documents as described previously. This tool makes it easy to create and track budgets collaboratively.

CALENDAR

This tool helps you keep your team in sync for meetings and events. You can also mark some items as private, so that your team cannot see the event, but know that you will be away. I suggest that you only use the calendar for actual scheduled events or items that must be done on a particular day.

START PAGE

If you have a system or process that needs to be followed company wide, you can use the customizable Google start page as a portal for your business. You can add links, notes and countless other widgets to implement a central starting point for your business. There is a personal version of this feature at <http://www.igoogle.com>.

The threatened veto has roiled even some of Bush's staunchest allies. Eighteen Republicans in the Senate voted for the $35 billion dollar increase The Senate GOP defectors joined 45 House Republicans who voted for the bill.

For Democrats and a growing number of Republicans backing the bill, the expansion of S-CHIP is an important moment in American healthcare.

Sunday 12-year-old Graeme Frost of Baltimore, who received life-saving care through S-CHIP, pleaded with Bush to sign the bill during the Democrats response to Bush's weekly radio address.

No 'Second Thoughts'. "The president doesn't have second thoughts" and will veto it, said Bush press secretary Dana Perino.

House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, Sen. Dianne Feinstein, Sen. Barbara Boxer, Congressman Joe Baca and other California elected officials issued statements calling on the president to sign the measure.

"It's unconscionable," said Pelosi. Democrats and Republicans are all asking "Where do you draw the line?" said Pelosi.

State and Inland health officials accuse Bush and Congress of playing politics at the expense of health care coverage for more than 6 million children, 800,000 of whom are in California.

Lesley Cummings, executive director of California's Managed Risk Medical Insurance Board, said she expects a presidential veto will push Congress to pass a stop gap measure as it works to draft a bill Bush will sign. But the state could still be forced to drastically reduce coverage under the Healthy Families program.

While the argument between Congress and the president goes on many Inland parents are left wondering why Bush who insists on leaving no child behind in education would kick children to the curb in health.

Sniff was also honored by the Riverside County sheriff's Department in 2003 with the National Defense Award. In January 2004, he was appointed assistant sheriff.

Kobe, Lakers All Together Now

The Black Voice News

EL SEGUNDO

By Gary Montgomery
Staff Writer

The 2007-08 Lakers said hello and goodbye on Monday Morning. The Team held its Media day activities and soon after, loaded up and headed off to Hawaii to open training camp in preparation for their 60th anniversary season.

A hoard of media scribes packed the floor of the Lakers' practice facility waiting for one moment to see whether Lakers' Superstar Kobe Bryant would show up.

Kobe was 30 minutes late after squeezing in an early morning doctors appointment. His late arrival was enough to set the hoard of media abuzz though, since it had been rumored all summer that Bryant might not attend. Those rumors were primarily the product of Kobe's post season talk show tirade.

But, as with most rumors, it was just that and when number 24 came striding out of the locker room the media immediately swarmed like bees returning to their hive.

Kobe had been quiet since his outburst back in May when he set the sports talk shows on fire with his assessment of team's situation. His suggestion that the Lakers front office had become a dysfunctional mess and subsequently requesting a trade hit 7.0 on the sports talk Richter scale.

FACING THE MUSIC - Kobe answers questions about his off season statements during media day at the Lakers' Training Facility in El Segundo.

THE BOSS - Lakers' Executive VP, Business Operations, Director & Alternate Governor, Jeanie Buss looks over the various media related activities underway.

"I was frustrated, so I blew up a little. But now, it's about taking the team that we have and taking it to new heights," said Kobe.

Kobe went where few athletes can with his comments regarding his employer. Although any fair minded individual would agree that Kobe's words echoed the feelings of most Lakers' fans. Yet, Kobe still had to endure the usual public lashing for daring to verbalize the excruciatingly obvious truth about the Lakers' organization.

To further exacerbate the situation, soon after Kobe's initial rampage, he was caught on tape complaining about Mitch Kupchak and his failure to upgrade the team, primarily by not exercising the opportunity to trade young Andrew Bynum for a veteran player. The recording made its way onto the internet, thanks to three loyal Lakers' fans.

Kobe apologized to Kupchak and Bynum during the summer and both have accepted his apology. Unfortunately though, Bryant's outcry for help may have fallen on deaf ears.

The team resigned Luke Walton and Chris Mims and brought Derrick Fisher back for a second time. But all rumored attempts to sign a big name player like Kevin Garnett or Jermaine O'Neal were unsuccessful leaving the team basically the same as it was last season.

The recurring question of the day though was about Kobe's remarks. There had to be a new Guinness book world record reached for asking the same question repeatedly. All of the players and coaches took a Barry Bond's size whack and drove it out right out of the park.

"He's a great guy and the best in the business. There's a lot of love here," said Brian Cook.

"I don't think it's as big a deal as people are making it out to be. He wants to win championships. This is the team we have and I think we can do that," said Luke Walton.

Derrick Fisher said, I'm not concerned about that. My focus is on this team. The guys on this team I see here are pretty good. There are times when we will all be frustrated. We will focus and grow together as a team.

"No I don't think it's a distraction. I don't think we will have any chemistry problems. I got a good guy on my team...the best player in the league. With the best player in the league, there's no team that we can't beat. Kobe has ask me to be a little more selfish with the basketball and I'm going to do that," said Lamar Odom.

Head Coach Phil Jackson said, "I have talked with Kobe. We talked about his trip and his experiences this summer (with team U.S.A.). I talked with all of the players. I did not get one guy who thought that anything that happened might be a problem for this team."

The Lakers have been eliminated in the first round in each of the last two years by Phoenix. Other than the addition of Fisher, it's practically the same team. When ask if he thought this team could win a championship, Jackson said "I don't know. We'll have to be awfully good in the middle. We've got two guys who were injured and one who was a novice."

The novice Phil was referring to is young Andrew Bynum who has been the focus of so many trade rumors. Bynum will be 20 years old on October 27, three days before the season opener. "He has grown times 2 (years experience) said Jackson. He worked out this summer and he has grown he looks like a man now."

The Lakers are all hugs and kisses right now and they are certainly sticking to the same script at this point. The real test is about to get underway when camp opens in Hawaii this week. If this team can avoid the key injuries that have throttled them in previous years, they could be pretty good and with a little luck they could get past first playoff round and who knows after that.

Layzie Bone Pops The Question At His Feature Film Debut

As Grammy Award winning, multi-platinum selling rapper Layzie Bone of legendary rap trio Bone Thugs-n-Harmony basked in the glory of CodeBlack Entertainment's "I Tried," his feature film debut, he seized the opportunity to create another milestone in his life. Layzie arrived at the screening hand in hand with Felicia Howse, mother of his children and girlfriend of 13 years. After taking photos on the red carpet alongside group member Wish Bone, Wish stepped to the side as Layzie had Felicia join him. He got down on one knee and presented her with a 5 karat cushion cut diamond ring as he asked her to take his hand in marriage. As you can see from the photos, she said yes.

The Bet Hip Hop Awards 2007 - Style. Substance. Swagger.

NEW YORK

BET Networks today announced the nominees for the annual BET Hip Hop Awards 2007, paying homage to urban music artists at the top of their game. If you thought last year's show was unbeatable, then hold on to your seats because BET is back in "hotlanta" with veteran host actor/comedian Katt Williams, who is sure to deliver a high energy show filled with hot performances by the best in the business! The BET Hip Hop Awards 2007 will take place on Saturday, October 13 at Atlanta's Civic Center, and premiere on the network Wednesday, October 17 at 8 p.m. ET/PT. Nelly, Lil' Wayne, Kanye West and Common are scheduled to perform. Additional presenters and performers to be announced shortly.

ATL native T.I. leads all Hip Hop Awards nominees with nine nods. T.I. is up for possible honors in the Best Collabo, Best Live Performance, Lyricist of the Year, MVP, Track of the Year, CD of the Year, Hustler of the Year, Best Ringbone and Viewer's Choice categories.

"We are so glad to be back in Atlanta once again for this year's version of what, in its debut, became the single hottest show in hip-hop," says Stephen Hill, Executive Vice President, Entertainment Programming, Music and Talent. "We're at a crucial point in the life of this music: Its messages and language have been scrutinized more this year than any other time in its history. I hope all hip-hop critics and fans will watch this show that will show all sides of the genre proudly and authentically. Love it. Hate it. The 'BET Hip Hop Awards 2007' will have style, substance and swagger."

Other artists with multiple nods include Lil' Wayne with seven, Kanye West with six, Common with five, Jay-Z with four, Ludacris and 50 Cent with three, and Diddy and UGK with two. Also, the legendary hip hop artist KRS-One, known for his political and socially conscious raps, will be honored with the "I Am Hip Hop" Icon Award.

For the second year in a row, BET also adds an international twist to the Hip Hop Awards by partnering with British music entities MTV Base and 1 Xtra BBC to create a special award around the British urban music scene. Five established hip-hop artists from the United Kingdom will battle for recognition by British hip-hop fans as Best UK Hip-Hop Artist. This category allows BET International to spotlight British hip-hop, and the winner will be announced in the UK on October 1 via radio and MTV BASE News.

Additionally, this year BET viewers and BET Digital users will have an opportunity to enter the BET Hip Hop Awards Hot 16 Challenge, judged by hip-hop mogul Jermaine Dupri. The winners will become VIPs at specified BET Hip Hop Awards events. The contest prizes include: A trip to The BET Hip Hop Awards 2007 for the winner and their entourage, a walk down the red carpet, party passes to the SoSoDef/BET Digital Pre-party and tickets to the Hip Hop Awards show. Log onto www.bet.com/hot16 for more information.

Elevating the star presence at the Atlanta Civic Center is red-hot host, comedian/actor Katt Williams. Although hosting an awards show - particularly one with this caliber of talent - is no easy gig, Katt says he's up for the challenge. Perhaps best known for his scene-stealing turn as Money Mike in "Friday After Next" and his HBO stand-up comedy special "The Pimp Chronicles, Part 1," Williams will lace the historic event with his edgy, brash and hilarious flavor.

Last year's inaugural The BET Hip Hop Awards 2007 drew an impressive 2.93 rating, which translated into 3.64 million viewers (2.44 million households) according to Nielsen Media Research. The show featured massive hip-hop stars Diddy, Busta Rhymes, Snoop Dogg, Nelly, Chamillionaire, Yung Joc, Keyshia Cole, Remy Ma, Rick Ross and the dirty south's own Jermaine Dupri, Ludacris, T.I. and Young Jeezy, among others.

Additionally, it honored one of the hip-hop world's pioneering figures, Grand Master Flash, with the "I Am Hip Hop" Icon Award.

Sickle Cell/Iron Overload Awareness Event Set for Weekend

LOS ANGELES

The Lighten the Load Gospel CD Release Party, an inspirational community event, celebrates sickle cell patients and their loved ones and encourages them to visit a physician and learn more about chronic iron overload due to blood transfusions and its health consequences. The event will take place on October 6, 2007 beginning at 11:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. at the First AME Church, 2270 South Harvard Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90018.

Iron overload or too much iron is a dangerous complication of the blood transfusions that many sickle cell patients receive as part of their therapy. Sickle cell disease is a serious life-long blood disorder that is diagnosed at birth and affects an estimated one in 500 African Americans.

The CD release party features a live performance by Lava Ministries Choir, winners of the 2007 Lighten the Load gospel CD contest, prizes and fun activities for the whole family. Los Angeles church choirs competed in the second annual Lighten the Load gospel contest for the opportunity to showcase their talents on a professionally produced compilation CD. The complimentary CD includes original songs by some of the finest African-American church choirs from across the country.

Community Action Partnership Attends Disaster Preparedness Training In Sacramento

The Black Voice News

RIVERSIDE

Community Action Partnership of Riverside County sent five persons, including Esperanza Fire victim John Robinson of Banning, to a Disaster Preparedness Training in Sacramento. Mr. Robinson gave testimony as to how Community Action Partnership gave him assistance when he and his son lost their home in the fire last fall.

"We were not able to go back up to the mountains until Saturday and my home was in ashes," Robinson said. "My son and I lost everything we owned. I was only partially insured. I got a call from Alida Plascencia of Community Action Partnership. She wanted to know how I was and what could they do to help me. I had become two months behind with my mortgage payment. They helped me with my mortgage and more. Community Action Partnership helped pay my phone bill, propane bill, and other utility bills. Alida also gave me numbers to other outside agencies that helped me. Thanks for Alida and Community Action Partnership. My son and I are back in our new home."

Community Action Partnership of Riverside County provides disaster prevention and relief services as a part of its goal to strengthen family and other support systems. When disaster strikes, people have immediate needs, and Community Action is one of the places where those in need can find help.

The training was provided by the California/Nevada Community Action Partnership and California Department of Community Services and Development. Community Action Partnership of Riverside County representatives at the training were Lois J. Carson, Executive Director; Godwin Aimua, Energy Department manager; Alida Plascencia, Disaster

John Robinson

Rainbow Celebrates 12th Anniversary

The Black Voice News

FONTANA

Rainbow Community Praise Center International of Fontana www.rainbowcommunity.org combines its anniversary with recognition of its membership October 12 and 13 with its 12th Anniversary and Apostle Appreciation Celebration.

Says Senior Apostle, Dr. D.C. Nosakhere Thomas, "We want to reconnect all those who have been involved with the church and who have been instrumental in its development this past dozen years. And we want to let the community know," he adds, "that we are a community church. As much as we are a part of the community, we want the community to become a part of our church that weekend."

The theme for the celebration is "Exceeding in Abundance," from Ephesians 3:20. This exciting event will take place at the Victoria Gardens Cultural Center's Celebration Hall, 12505 Cultural Center Drive in Rancho Cucamonga.

Leading off the elaborate weekend is:

Youth Explosion - Friday, October 12 at 7 p.m.

Recording artist Karen Wiggins and the Rainbow Community Praise Team will open the evening with a phenomenal praise and worship service. "Karen Wiggins is one of the most anointed praise and worship ministers I have ever heard," Thomas says.

The guest speaker Friday will be Pastor Marc Raphael of the Imani Praise Fellowship Seventh-day Adventist church in Moreno Valley. Bringing praise-filled entertainment to the evening will be Another Peace Music Ministry, consisting of college and university students from all over the Inland Empire.

Sabbath School - Saturday, October 13 at 9:30 a.m.

Saturday morning will begin with a high Praise and Worship experience led by recording artist Sonya Griffin formerly of the L.A. Mass Choir. Additionally, there will be a powerful message of empowerment by Dr. Jerome Crichton, Senior Pastor of Every Word Ministries in Antioch, California.

Worship Service - Saturday, October 13 at 11:00 a.m.

The Abundant Living Praise Team joins in the festivities that morning along with the Greater Los Angeles Cathedral Choir. Guest speaker will be Dr. La'Chelle Woodert, the famous Los Angeles area civil rights defense attorney. "She is a powerful woman of God with an extraordinary prophetic anointing," Thomas explains. "She ministers healing and deliverance throughout the country."

Sensational '60s Party - Saturday, October 13 at 7:00 p.m.

The weekend is capped off by comedian Ron G, the second-place winner of Bill Bellamy's "Who Got Jokes" television show. This extremely talented and youthful comedian from Atlanta, Georgia is unique in the business - he tells clean jokes.

Along with enjoying Ron G and other entertainment Saturday evening, you can share a gourmet Italian dinner and dancing, karaoke, Name That Tune and a "must see" 60's Costume Contest.

Tickets are required for the Sensational '60s party at $15 for adults and $10 for children, and are available by calling Rainbow at (909) 972-9467. Call, also, for the weekend's details or stop by the Rainbow Community Praise Center International at 15854 Sierra Lakes Parkway in Fontana.
